"THERE is no excuse for mistaking or misapprehending the feeling and the temper of the rank and file of Democracy. They are downcast under the assertion that their party fails in ability to manage the government, and they are apprehensive that efforts to bring about tariff reform may fail; but they are much more downcast and apprehensive in their fear that Democratic principles may be surrendered."

—CLEVELAND'S LETTER TO WILSON.

"HOW can we face the people after indulging in such outrageous discriminations and violations of principle?"

—CLEVELAND'S LETTER TO WILSON.

Those Signs of Improvement.

The Chicago Inter-Ocean, in a lengthy editorial, ably discusses the present business situation from a political standpoint, but without partisan feeling. It fairly presents the subject, and the INTELLIGENCER is glad to summarize what it says for the benefit of its readers. It is not the policy of the Republican press to animadvert upon the operations of the Gorman tariff bill in the unpatriotic spirit that the Democratic press manifested toward the McKinley bill, and the Inter-Ocean is no exception. It recalls that in the midst of prosperity that was unprecedented, and which, it is to be feared, long will remain unapproached, that followed directly on the enforcement of the provisions of the McKinley law, the Democratic press ranked and canted about the "starving workmen," who were receiving better wages than they are now, or are likely to receive for years to come. While professing to commiserate the really well-to-do workmen the Democratic press denounced as "robber barons," "soulless plutocrats," and as whatever is vile the capitalists whose investments in industrial enterprises were creating an unusual demand for labor on the one hand and producing an unusually large output of manufactures on the other, with the inevitable result of making wages high and the finished products of labor low in price.

Our contemporary, as is the INTELLIGENCER, is supremely interested in a return of prosperity, and declares that it will gladly note any improvement in financial conditions. There are, it says, encouraging circumstances to note already. The Gorman tariff bill, bad as it is, cannot be tinkered into a more radical free trade measure for twelve months to come, even if a Democratic majority be returned to the next Congress. If a Republican majority be returned the danger of a change for the worse will still further be delayed. Hence manufacturers feel safe in making calculations twelve months ahead of date. Stocks are unusually low, for, relatively small as the purchasing power of the people has been, and is likely to be for some time to come, purchases have been made in sufficient quantity to reduce the stocks in stores and factories to the lowest point ever known. These stocks must now be replenished and their replenishment must produce a demand for labor. This is the cause of the present temporary revival.

"But," pursues the Inter-Ocean, "it will be no such demand as was noticeable during the eighteen months in which the McKinley law had free course and was glorified. The number of unemployed during the coming winter will be great. Europe will make many things for us that we have been accustomed to make for ourselves. The wages of labor will not be what they were in the days when McKinleyism was triumphant. They will have to assimilate to those which obtain in the countries in which are produced the articles with which American manufacturers now must compete. And with diminution of the wage fund there will be diminution of the purchasing fund."

"Nor are prospects bright for lower prices. Sugar already has begun its ascent. The manufacturers of Lowell and Fall River predict higher rather than lower prices for cotton goods. The 'cheap clothing' myth already has vanished. Free wool will not cheapen a twelve-dollar suit by one dollar, and, in conjunction with other Democratic tinkering, it will reduce the old-time twelve-dollar wage rate to at least eleven. By this sublimely beneficent arrangement of Democracy the wage-earner of the cheaper class will save $1 and lose $52 each year."

These are the facts in connection with the signs of improvement. It is a cause for general congratulation that the improvement, which was inevitable after the depletion of stocks, is coming; it is equally a cause for regret that it is not such an improvement as was witnessed after the enactment of the McKinley law, by which our industrial interests were more carefully guarded, and also a regret that the Democratic party has announced that it will not rest until the last vestige of protection is abolished.

Workingmen and Democratic Times.

Laboring men in Wheeling and elsewhere, who have been idle for many months, are well pleased to see the "Democratic Times" and the property they bring with them. —Register.

Laboring men in Wheeling welcome employment that came with the natural revival of trade after the tariff uncertainty ended, and after the long idleness incident to Democratic hard times, during which the supply of manufactured goods was exhausted. They welcome work because Democratic tariff tinkering had brought them and their families to the verge of starvation, but they do not welcome the fact that they are obliged to accept Democratic wages, and they regret that they are not having a return of the days of unprecedented prosperity that followed the adoption of the McKinley tariff bill, and continued until the Wilson assault on protection began.

But there is another phase of the situation which the intelligent wage workers of the United States are thinking about, and all the demagogic evasions of the Register cannot turn their minds away from it, for it is the main issue. The Register furnishes a text for the thought in another editorial in which it says: "The enactment of a favorable tariff law has suddenly stimulated every industry, and in our Martin's Ferry news this morning are announcements that four of the largest plants in the town are to start up or put on increased force to-day."

The "favorable tariff law," mentioned in the Register, is the newly enacted bill which became a law without the signature of a Democratic President, and which has been denounced as a protective measure by every Democratic convention in the country—a measure which no Democrat will recognize as based on a Democratic principle. And yet this is the law which the Register claims is responsible for a revival of business! This law which recognizes the Republican doctrine of protection and repudiates the Democratic doctrine of free trade—this law which Democrats themselves declare shall be wiped from the statute books as soon as they can rid Congress of the Gormans and Drices and Camdens and Faulkners, the Register has the monumental nerve to claim is a law "favorable" to the industries of the country.

What a spectacle for the workmen of the country to contemplate! On the one hand they find the Democratic party, headed by President Cleveland and Mr. Wilson, declaring that the new tariff bill is a violation of Democratic principles and that it is a cowardly compromise with the principle of protection; that the work of the Democratic party will not end until it is repealed and a genuine Democratic free trade measure is enacted. On the other hand they witness the acknowledgement by a Democratic newspaper organ that this bill which recognizes the principle of protection is bringing good times and is "favorable" to the wage earner. Does the Register expect the party which is waging war with the McKinley law, and the McKinley law, to accept as Democratic a law that the Democratic party repudiates and expects to repeal?

If a bill recognizing the Republican doctrine of protection has wrought a change for the better in the industrial world, does the Register expect its beneficiaries to vote for the party which says its mission is not accomplished and that the fight will not end until the last vestige of protection is wiped from the statute books? Should it not, to be consistent and logical, rather advise the wage earners to vote for the party making no such threat, but which declares for better protection, and for a return to the industrial prosperity existing before a Democratic Congress began its onslaught on American industries, American wages and American homes? Congress did not wholly succeed in its industry-wrecking policy, and that is why there is a temporary revival. In the face of the threat that the war will be continued, American workmen are not likely to vote to return the would-be wreckers to power.

Ex-President Harrison at Elkins.

In an interview in New York, published in the Herald, ex-President Harrison, previous to his departure for Elkins, this state, where he will be the guest of ex-Secretary of War Elkins, is quoted as follows:

"I am going to West Virginia, but shall try to avoid being in the state when the congressional convention in question will be held. The convention is to be on Wednesday, I believe. I leave this city on Monday night, and shall be in the state on Tuesday only. I assume, Mr. McKee, my daughter, is going to call on Mr. and Mrs. Elkins, and I am going to accompany her there, but expect to leave promptly for home."

As General Harrison cannot reach Elkins before Tuesday evening, and as it is hardly likely that he will be permitted to leave so early as Wednesday morning, it is more than probable that he will be there during the convention. In that event he may be induced to address the convention.

The Herald's prediction that he will find it convenient to blow a "bugle blast" for protection in the home district of the Democratic party's free trade leader may be verified, and it may be assumed that the "bugle blast" will be heard from one end of the country to the other. It will not be pleasant ing to the Democrats but will inspire the Republicans with enthusiasm. When General Harrison speaks he never fails to say something worth hearing and remembering.

The Disasters in the Northwest.

The fearful ravages of the forest fires in the northwest, accompanied as they are by an appalling loss of life, have shocked the entire country. The horrors of the tragedies that have been enacted are almost without precedent in this country.

Added to the terrible destruction of property and the coming of death in its most awful form is the suffering that results to the living. Hundreds of families have been left homeless and destitute of clothing and food, and without means of earning a livelihood. Sorrowful as this situation is, it will doubtless be met by a sympathetic public with generous aid for the stricken ones. The great American family has never been found wanting in feeling for its unfortunate members on such occasions, and it goes without saying that the present call for relief will be liberally responded to from all parts of the union. The feeling of humanity which makes us all akin in times of dire disaster knows no sectional nor state lines.

The State Fair.

The State Fair starts off auspiciously this year, and, if the weather permits, the exhibition will be the most successful in the history of the association. The exhibits in all departments are more numerous and the displays more attractive than in previous years, while the programme for the entertainment of visitors is fully up to the high standard which has been established by the managers, while the racetrack feature will not be disappointing.

The managers of the association deserve the congratulations of the public on the outlook for a successful crowning of their enterprising efforts, and the best way for this community and the state to testify their appreciation of the work is to accord the fair a liberal patronage. It is an institution of which Wheeling is justly proud and deserves the substantial encouragement of all public spirited citizens.

Ex-Speaker Reed.

The Register affects to be anxious for the Republicans, and carries out its bluff by advising the Democratic campaign committee to pay his expenses. This isn't the Register's first unsuccessful attempt at whistling to keep up its courage. It knows, and so does the Democratic committee, that Thomas B. Reed is one of the last men in America whom the free trade party wants to see enter West Virginia on a speaking tour. He is a terror to free traders both in and out of Congress, and the news that he is to assist the West Virginia Republican cause this year is a source of great uneasiness to the Democratic managers. Republican enthusiasm will not be dampened by the Register's sickly affectation of pleasure.

An Honorable Career.

The Wheeling INTELLIGENCER has entered upon the forty-third year of its existence, and it can point back through the vista of years with pride and satisfaction. No newspaper in the country has had a more honorable and successful career than the INTELLIGENCER. Its Republicanism has never for a moment been questioned, and its character as a high class and respectable newspaper has never been tarnished in the slightest degree. The Herald offers its congratulations to the leading Republican paper of the state, and wishes for it a never ending and ever successful life.

TROUBLE OVER GERMAN QUESTION.

The Supreme Lodge May Require That the Ritual Must be Performed in the English Language—In This Event German-American Lodges Declare That They Will Secede. Yesterday's Session.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 3.—A split in the Knights of Pythias is said by members of the supreme lodge to be a possible and perhaps probable outcome of the meeting now in progress here. Already the committee designated to consider the question of the membership of liquor dealers has decided to report against the future admission of this class, and now it is understood that the committee in charge of the matter, known as the "German question," that is the question of permitting lodges to perform the ritual in that language has decided to make an iron-clad report for the use of the English language only. It is said by Supreme Chancellor Blackwell to be the intention of Pythians to make their order a patriotic one, and to bend all its influences to the support of the institutions of our government. The opponents of the German lodges say that the perpetuation of a foreign language in the United States will not tend to the support of the institutions of this government and think that foreign members in the United States should be Americanized.

The German lodges have been open in the avowed of their determination to secede and conduct their branch of the order on their own responsibility in case their cotext went against them. It is understood that a committee report will be made against the recognition of the Pythian lodges as an order. The morning session of the supreme lodge to-day was devoted to the consideration of the proposed new constitution. In the afternoon solemn memorial services in memory of ex-Congressman George B. Shaw, of Wisconsin, past supreme chancellor, were held. The Pythian quartette furnished music, and speeches were made by Major General James B. Carnahan, of the Uniform Rank, Supreme Chancellor W. W. Blackwell, Vice Supreme Chancellor Walter H. Richie and others.

K. of P. Honored at Home.

Special Dispatch to the Intelligencer.
 PARKERSBURG, W. VA., Sept. 3.—When the Uniform Rank K. of P. boys returned from Washington this afternoon they were met at the station by a great multitude of people with flowers and a brass band and escorted to their armory. A public reception will be tendered them and medals will probably be cast commemorating their signal victory at Washington.

A Respected Citizen Dead.

Special Dispatch to the Intelligencer.
 FAIRMONT, W. VA., Sept. 3.—Francis Christie, aged seventy-seven years, died at his residence on Bridge street last night after an illness of three months. He was born in Morgantown and moved to this place and married when he was about eighteen years old, and has lived here continuously, his wife surviving him at the advanced age of seventy-four years. The lodge of Odd Fellows was established here in 1848 and the following June he was initiated and was one of the oldest members of that organization here. He was a most exemplary man and an excellent citizen.

Severely Injured.

Special Dispatch to the Intelligencer.
 CALDWELL, O., Sept. 3.—Wayne Barlow, a section hand on the Baltimore, Zanesville & Cincinnati railroad, had a narrow escape from instant death at this place this morning. He was engaged in unloading a car of steel rails, when from the heavy weight resting on one side of the car it upset, falling down an embankment. Barlow was thrown under the car, while a number of the rails fell upon his leg, badly crushing that member. Had not the car fallen against fenceposts at the side of the road he would have been instantly killed.

When We Read of Some of These Wonderful Things.

Miss Jessie L. Putnam, a well-known and popular young lady residing on the Lowell Road, Lawrence, Mass., has just had a very narrow escape from death.

"Two years ago," she says, "I found I was beginning to be very nervous and that the least excitement would bring on a fit of hysteria from which it took me two or three hours to recover. My nerves got in such a bad condition that some days I would cry for hours and then have a laughing spell.

"I was completely unstrung and could do nothing about my place. My stomach began to trouble me and I could not keep anything on it. From a woman weighing 142 pounds I found myself reduced to a shadow and was so feeble that I could hardly dress myself.

"I tried several physicians, but they did not seem to be able to do anything to relieve me. I really thought my days were numbered, and in fact made every preparation for my death, as I fully expected to die within a short time.

MISS JESSIE L. PUTNAM.

"One of our neighbors calling wanted to know if I had ever used Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and spoke so strongly in favor of it that I thought I would try it. When I had finished the first bottle and started on the second I felt that instead of a doomed woman I was going to be cured and enjoy life.

"My nervousness grew less and I ate without my food distressing me. In the least, something I had not done for two years, and I began to gain in flesh. I took six bottles and am now a well, strong woman, and hope to live to a good old age. My faith in Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy is so strong that I gladly tell every one what it has done for me, and I cannot too highly express my thanks for what Dr. Greene has done for me."

It is a fact that this wonderful medicine, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy will cure when others fail, that it will save life after all hope is gone. Take it and you will regain health and vigor, for it is the medicine that cures. Dr. Greene, its discoverer, is our most successful specialist in curing all forms of nervous and chronic disease. He can be consulted at his office, 35 West Fourteenth street, New York, free, personally or by letter.
